Description :

PDF-a6a6e | Tasmania's first European settlers were a diverse and eclectic lot—men and women from all walks of life who ended up cast together in a far-flung colony at the end of the world, where adversity was commonplace but opportunity abounded. From former convicts to the highly privileged, they forged their own ways in Van Diemen's land—as farmers, traders, publicans, whalers, businessmen, politicians... Living in History: Tasmania's Historic Homes, the People Who Built Them, and Those Who Live in Them Now
